WCMA Autoslalom Bulletin 2007-01

Aug 29, 2007

The ASN Solosport Committee has recently released a number of updates to the 2007 Canadian Autoslalom Championship(CAC) rules. The current WCMA rules use the CAC Car Preparation Rules and Classes, and there is provision in the WCMA rules for adopting updates released by CAC.

This allowance was included with the assumption that any rule changes that came mid-season would be relatively minor clarifications of existing rules. That is not the case with these recent updates: there are new classes created, preparation points changed, and changes to classing for non-North American sourced vehicles.

WCMA feels it would not be prudent to make such drastic changes to the rules midway through the season and the regional series, therefore the WCMA rules shall follow the CAC rules as originally published this year and as included within the published 2007 WCMA Solo rules.

If these changes to the CAC rules remain in effect for the 2008 season, they will likely be adopted within the WCMA rules at that time.
